Dear Colleagues,

I am writing to thank you and your school for your participation in the Education for Wellbeing research programme, the largest randomised controlled trial of school-based interventions for mental health and wellbeing in the UK.

Your participation in this programme has been critical to improving the evidence available to the department, schools and others on how to support the mental health and wellbeing of children and young people, and I am grateful for your commitment to this.

Yours sincerely,

Richard Vaughan
Deputy Director, Life Skills Division
